

CLASS OF 1909

Interesting Program Rendered by Graduates at

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT

Of the Bedford High School—Orations, Recitations, Music—Assembly Hall in Green and White.

Assembly Hall, beautifully decorated in green and white, the colors of the class of '09, was well filled Tuesday evening when the school officials, teachers and members of the class took their places upon the rostrum to participate in the twentieth annual commencement of the Bedford High School. After prayer by Rev. J. Albert Eyer, pastor of St. John's Reformed Church, and the singing of the class song, an excellent program was presented, the orations being appended.

Miss L. D. Shuck presided at the piano. The recitations, Bernice and the Christian Girl, Marcia by Miss Winifred Armstrong, and Cherokee Roses by Miss Carrie Milburn were enthusiastically applauded. The clarinet solo—Long, Long Ago—by Harry Koontz, and the vocal solo—Who Knows—by Miss Georgie Beckley were well rendered and well received. The History and Prophecy by Miss Beckley showed much originality.

Salutatory

J. Egbert Imler, who delivered the welcome address, is a son of Ex-Sheriff Joseph P. Imler of Osterburg. The subject of his oration was "Enduring Monuments."

Kind friends, it is my pleasant duty to welcome you to these, our commencement exercises. We rejoice in the completion of our high school course and have taken great pleasure in preparing this program. Your presence is gratifying to us and therefore, in behalf of the class, I extend to you a most cordial welcome.

From the earliest periods of history man has been eager to perpetuate his deeds in lasting form. As an evidence, tribes and nations have erected structures whereby posterity may learn. These structures may bear record of heroic deeds in the chase or upon the field of battle, or they may reflect the customs of common life. The Egyptians have erected temples and pyramids where man may read in hieroglyphics the history of an ancient civilization. Greece and Rome, in their day of progress, built temples studded with massive pillars, engraving their laws and triumphs in enduring marble and bronze. Modern nations, no less eager to transmit for future enlightenment and benefit the memory of their works, have reared edifices that are as enduring as the structures of old.

All these are monuments which perpetuate the memory not only of the builders but of civilizations long before them. To the spectator they appear enduring and will no doubt stand the wear of time. Future generations will look upon them as marvelous works. But while they appear to be lasting in form and material, are we justified in saying they are enduring, when we know that in course of time they will return to dust as did the monuments of old, and new monuments shall spring up to perpetuate the name of new civilizations and the deeds of their heroes? These in turn shall suffer the ravages of the elements. If stone and marble are destined to crumble and decay, can we not find more enduring monuments than these?

When the statues and pillars have toppled over and the events for which they stood are forgotten, there remains in the mind of man the memory of the deeds of his race, which he embodies in a glorious literature that survives the crumbling stone which has perpetuated them. In the libraries of the world we may read and enjoy the thoughts of ages, which have been handed down to us and which bear record of remote times and events. The literature of the past is studied and enjoyed by each generation and it stands as a lasting monument of the deeds of man. But as civilizations have passed from the face of the earth shall their literature go down in oblivion. The memory of its benefactors and their deeds will be forgotten and, like other material monuments, new civilizations will spring up, new literatures will be conceived, and each shall in their turn be forgotten.

While stone and metal, civilizations and literature shall serve their time, where shall we look for enduring monuments? As all these are transitory, the spirit which they represent lives on. Washington and Lincoln have rendered a service to their land and we honor them in many tangible forms. Their praises will be recorded in story and song for a long time. But when the people forget to pay this homage of respect, is there not something in their lives which still live on? Long after their portraits have been defaced and the marble shafts and bronze statues have decayed, when even their names are forgotten, their deeds will be with the world and shall stand as the monuments which time can never efface.

MINERS AND OPERATORS MEET

To Determine Wage Scale—No Conclusion Reached.

The operators and representative miners of the Broad Top bituminous coal field met in convention in the Barnett building at this place on Friday to canvass the question of a scale of wages for the ensuing year. The meeting was called by order of Patrick Gilday, president of the United Mine Workers of this district, but on account of being detained elsewhere Mr. Gilday was not present. He was represented by Vice President James Purcell and National Board Member, Thomas Haggerty. Practically a full representation of operators was present and 12 Local Unions were represented by about 30 delegates. A number of miners, superintendents and foremen were also present.

A session was held in the forenoon, and a short session, attended only by the operators and delegates, was held in the afternoon. Addresses were made by officers and operators, but neither side presented a formulated demand and the discussion was along general lines as applicable to the Broad Top region and its position in the competitive market.

The only suggestion that approached a possible demand was from the miners' side, when the question was asked the operators if a reduction of 10 or 15 cents a ton in the price of mining would guarantee steady work. No reply was made to this. The operators contend that at 65 cents a ton for mining and the additional pay for dead work, Broad Top coal stands little show in the markets in competition with the output in larger veined fields and the cheap fields of the South.

The miners did not feel at liberty to go outside the rate fixed by the Altoona convention, so there was no agreement arrived at, and the matter stands the same as on April 1, when the present scale expired, and the mines have been idle. There are about 2,000 miners idle in the Broad Top field.—Saxton Herald.

FELL FROM ROOF

Deceased was aged about 54 years.

DO NOT SPRAY BLOSSOMS

Prof. Surface Gives Some Excellent Advice to Fruit Growers.

Owners of fruit trees who intend spraying to prevent diseases and kill codling moth larvae are advised by Prof. Surface of the Division of Economic Zoology of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture not to spray the blossoms, but to wait until after the petals have dropped, or more than three-fourths are down. To secure the best results the spray must be applied within six days after the blossoms fall, and a second spraying should be done ten days or two weeks after the first application.

Following are the objections to spraying trees when in bloom:

1. There is no definite pest for which the spray is applicable at that time, and each spraying should be for something definite.
2. The very young fruit is liable to be injured by the spray liquid falling upon it at this time. Spraying when in bloom is a very sure way of thinning the fruit crop, but it is very unsatisfactory.
3. Spraying blossoms with poison results in the destruction of bees. Bees are necessary for fertilization and setting of the fruit.
4. The delay of only a short time, or until just after the blossoms fall, gives the proper time for spraying for the codling moth and for plant diseases and does not result in the destruction of fruit or bees. The proper spraying material is the Bordeaux Mixture to which an arsenical poison such as Paris green or arsenate of lead is added. There are two spraying strengths for this liquid according to the hardness of the tree or plant to be sprayed. Spray the apple, pear, quince and potato with the strong formula which calls for three pounds bluestone and four pounds of quick lime to 50 gallons of water, with one to two pounds of arsenate of lead added to this. If Paris green is used, instead of the arsenate of lead, one-third pound should be used to each 50 gallons.

The weak formula calls for one-half of the above quantities of bluestone and arsenate of lead in 50 gallons of water. This is used on peach and plum trees on account of tender bark, and on similar delicate plants. Peach and plum trees should be sprayed immediately after the blossoms fall, but these and other fruit trees should be sprayed for codling moth and other pests after the fruit has reached the size of a marble.

SPRAYING DEMONSTRATION

To Be Held at County Home May 10 and 11.

To Fruit Growers:
The first spraying demonstration for the codling moth larvae and fungus diseases with Bordeaux Mixture and Arsenate of Lead will be applied to the trees in the Demonstration Orchard at the County Home May 10 and 11. Monday and Tuesday of next week. All interested in better and more fruit should attend the demonstration and learn why, how and when the proper mixture to use should be applied for the different insects you are trying to destroy.

We recommend two pounds of Arsenate of Lead and Bordeaux Mixture applied directly after the blossoms fall, driven directly into the calyx before it closes. It is often necessary to be elevated upon a platform, step ladder, or use an angle nozzle to drive the mixture into the calyx, depending upon the position of them. This work must be done intelligently, with the most thoroughness, especially the first spraying.

If you attend the demonstration work I will endeavor to show why the above points are necessary to get almost perfect fruit, which can be secured by observing them. The west is leading the east because they are raising good fruit, which is packed perfectly.

D. F. Lee, Demonstrator.

DR. M. L. CULLER

Delivered Excellent Sermon Sunday Evening to the

GRADUATING CLASS OF '09

"We Need the Common Schools and What They Need"—Large Audience Present.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding," Prov. 4: 7.

A bar of iron, worth $5, worked into horseshoes, is worth $10; made into penknife blades it is worth $400; wrought into needles it is worth $3,000; made into balance-springs for watches it is worth $250,000. This is a fitting illustration of the educated in comparison with the uneducated; and also indicates the degrees of education.

The true aim, and purpose of education is the formation of character. This means the harmonious development of all our faculties—the intellectual and moral; perception, reason, judgment, and conscience. In other words, the intellect, the sensibilities and the will.

But the whole aim is and must be development of true character. And true character rests on the basis of morality. And morality, if it has true life and vitality, must be permeated with religion. We must have religious morality. No country can exist and promote the prosperity and happiness of all the people without morality. We need not only to get wisdom, but also to get understanding—understanding to know what the will of God is, which is the highest happiness of man in this life and in the life to come. This happiness can be secured to us only as we live in harmony with God's will. Therefore, I say that morality must be based on the principles of religion—on an understanding of and meeting our obligations both to God and man.

Therefore, the church must never relinquish her legitimate place in the leadership of progress in our country, if it is to be prosperous and happy. The church, in the beginning of our history as a nation, which has been glorious, was one of the two potent factors in the formation of American civilization. The common schools was the other potent factor. Our national forefathers had both wisdom and understanding, therefore they planted, so to speak, the church and school side by side. The one did not exist without the other, and woe to our civilization and our country's welfare, if these two friendly allies of our country's happiness are ever separated by senseless jealousy and foolish rivalry.

For if we have religion without true education—the power to reason, to think, to form correct judgment—the result is likely to be superstition and fanaticism. And people then may be led to do very absurd, extravagant, even immoral and wicked things, in the name of religion and may even imagine they are doing God service. On the other hand, if we have education without a true morality, founded on religion—a sense of duty to God and man, we are liable to have skepticism, infidelity, and consequent immorality.

Never was there a time in our country's history when it was so important and urgent as now that the thinking, the judgment, and actions of the masses of the people must be governed by true morality; because in the vagaries of superficial minds there is a thoughtless purpose to separate all religious or christian morality from education in the common schools and in all state schools—to make the education entirely godless, or agnostic.

The current in this direction is strong. The age is critical. The spirit of the age is aggressive but largely superficial. If this aggressive spirit is not properly controlled and guided, great injury will be done to soundness of morals and civic righteousness; and the foundations of social order and virtue will be undermined. We witness the sad fruits of this godless, superficial thinking in faulty and iniquitous legislation, in social impurity, in commercial and business dishonesty, in political and domestic corruption.

It was possible to secure social order and obedience to law, and foster patriotism among the ancient pagan nations, such as the Egyptians, Babylonians, Persians, Greeks and Romans, only as their wise men, poets, philosophers, and their statesmen taught a proper reverence for their deities and the practice of their religions. The fear of their gods and the sanctions of their religions were necessary to enforce obedience to law. When their religion was neglected their morals became more and more depraved, political corruption followed, social order was destroyed, and their national existence ceased.

If this proposition is true, and it

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Pains of Bedford People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of urine poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill.

No need to take the statement of someone living far away as evidence. Here's a case right in this locality. Mrs. Josiah Cook, First Ave., Hyndman, Pa., says: "About a year ago I had a severe attack of kidney disease and lumbago. A constant, dull pain across the small of my back made it almost impossible for me to attend to my housework and my general health was run down. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills and I obtained so much benefit from the first box that I continued, until I received complete relief. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing them to act just as represented."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

certainly is, for it is the verdict of history—I say, if this is true of heathen nations and their religions, how much more so is it a vital matter, that the principles of a true christian morality should have their due place in our common school instruction. Those men who clamor against all religious instruction in our schools are not true patriots. They are shortsighted and ignorant of the best interests of the rising generations. Their thinking is superficial. Their unreasonable prejudices blind their clear perception between that which is really sectarian in religion and that which is the common need of every rational, human soul.

I would be the last one to advocate religious sectarianism in our common schools but the best interests of all the pupils, and our country, demand the teaching of a religious morality which enlightens the conscience and trains good citizens for the state. Therefore, I repeat that true education is and must be the formation of character. Theism or belief in God is optimism. Atheism is pessimism, destruction. If there is no God, then ignorance is bliss and education is a crime.

The Dangers of One-Sided Development

It is a well-known fact that excessive bodily exercise weakens the power to think because all the vitality of the brain is then absorbed in bodily exertion. If the intellectual powers are developed to the neglect of the moral faculties, the moral nature suffers loss. And if the body have not exercise, man is unfit for life's duties, no matter how cultivated the mind. And if the intellect or reason is not cultivated in harmony with the moral faculties, people are liable to become cranks or religious fanatics.

It is related of Milo, a famous Greek athlete, that he began to carry every day a calf one month old. As the calf grew and increased in weight Milo's strength also increased every day, so that he was able to carry the four-year-old animal. But he was not fit to do anything besides this. The incident illustrates the danger of developing any one of the powers of mind or body at the expense of other faculties. It is a sad fact, also, that those who pursue scientific studies to the exclusion of everything else and thus ignore their moral natures, as a logical and psychological penalty, become skeptics, infidels and atheists.

The Imagination in Education

The cultivation of the imagination must not be neglected; I mean the imagination under the control of reason, sound judgment, and common sense. There can be no poetry without imagination, and we know that the reading of poetry and high-grade fiction is a valuable aid in developing the imagination. Every successful detective must, of necessity, have a strong and cultivated imagination to outwit criminals. Every orator and every successful preacher must have imagination, as well as sober and clear thought, in the construction of speeches and sermons to secure and hold the attention of the hearer.

The parables of Jesus are striking examples of sanctified imagination. Every painter, sculptor, and architect calls into use his imagination. The promoters and undertakers of great enterprises have always been men of strong imagination. Statesmen, in order to anticipate the needs of the people and the effects of certain legislation, must be gifted with constructive imagination to conceive the best things. Philanthropists must be endowed with the imagination to conceive of wise and far-reaching ways for the betterment of the condition of the distressed and suffering masses of mankind.

General Booth of the Salvation Army is a notable example of far-seeing and consecrated imagination. I have said as much as I have concerning the imagination because there are some people so exceedingly prone as to think that the imagination has no place in education. Preachers, teachers and speakers without imagination are always as dry as dust.

The common schools need the best teachers, good men and women in the highest and truest sense—teachers possessed not only with sufficient intellectual training but with strong moral and religious convictions—teachers who have a true sense of their responsibilities to God and the immortal souls of the youth under their training and influence for about ten years of their lives and for an average of eight months of each of those years.

What vast opportunities and solemn responsibilities are in the hands of teachers for good or evil! Good teachers always feel they are educating themselves while teaching others; and where this feeling is not found the power to educate others is lost. The teacher's value consists more in what the teacher is, than in what he knows. There are men whose minds are veritable encyclopedias and yet have no capacity for teaching; they lack the personality, the enthusiasm, and tact to enter into the mental and moral feelings of their pupils and quicken their interest.

This is an age prolific in methods and systems and theories in education. Some of these methods are so complicated as to make the teacher a mere operator to run a machine without special interest on the part of the teacher except to see that the machine is well lubricated and kept in running order. This destroys the personal factor in education, which is far more important than much learning.

The purpose of education is not simply to store the mind with the subjects of study, but to develop the power to think and meet the responsibilities of life. The purpose of education is not to make a show of abilities. The craving for notoriety and applause is a morbid feeling and shows want of refinement. To appear to be what we are not is dishonesty. They are happy, indeed, who know their real merit and are not distressed, nor care to know what others may think or say. They know the truth and the truth has made them free. It is greater and nobler to desire to be right and do right, than to be the president of the United States. When it was suggested to Henry Clay by some of his political friends that he could be elected president of the United States by certain dishonorable schemes, his noble reply was: "I would rather be right than be president."

The Subjects of Study

While the course of study should be as extended and liberal as possible, the common branches should by no means or in any manner be neglected for more pretentious studies, in which the limited time, the youth, and unpreparedness of the scholar forbid much profit. There never must be a dispute or question in the minds of the teachers and scholars, or school directors, as to which of the common branches are of greater or less importance. The aim must be thoroughness. We dare not neglect one for the other.

This is finely illustrated by a little parable given by an intelligent and capable lady, as follows: "One evening I was sitting quietly in my room, in deep thought, when I heard a confused noise among a collection of school books. I soon found it was a strife among them which should be

TRY THE MONEY-BACK CURE FOR INDIGESTION

Nine times in ten stomach derangements are responsible for sallow complexion, dull eyes and thin body.

It is the stomach that supplies nourishing blood to the muscles, the nerves, and skin. If the stomach is healthy, plenty of nutritious matter will be absorbed by the blood. If it is not healthy, the food will ferment, and undigested, will pass along through the bowels, furnishing so little nutritious matter that the blood becomes impoverished, and the glow of health vanishes.

If you suffer from nervousness, sick headache, belching of gas, sour taste in the mouth, heaviness after eating, or any other miserable stomach disturbance, you need Mi-o-na, and the sooner you get it the quicker you will be healthier and happier.

It will relieve any distressed stomach condition almost immediately. It will cure if used according to directions. F. W. Jordan sells it for 50 cents a large box, and he thinks enough of it to guarantee it to cure indigestion.

considered the most important. History had the floor and boastingly said: 'Who could give us a knowledge of the past ages of the world if it were not for me? What else contains the records of the famous warriors, statesmen, great reformers, benefactors of mankind, and all the men and women of commanding influence in the world?'

"Stop, vain boaster," exclaimed geography. 'Who could know the countries of the world, the great divisions of the earth, the divisions of land and water, if it were not for me?'

"Enough, my friend," said natural science, 'If it were not for me who could understand why the apples fall to the ground and do not fall upwards, out of the reach of the boys and girls? Who could understand the law of gravitation or any of the laws of nature? Who could tell us about steam, electricity, or any other natural servants of mankind?'

"That will do," said English grammar. 'How could you know how to speak and write correctly your own language without me? I stand for the honor and correct use of our own mother tongue.'

"At last a little blue-backed, modest spelling-book had its opportunity to say a word. 'You know,' it said, 'I am not the least among you, though I speak last. I am really first. Were it not for me—for these 26 letters—not one of you could have existence. To me you owe all your greatness.' They all hung their heads under this just and well-deserved rebuke. I would therefore urge all teachers and scholars not to forget or slight the spelling-book."

It is always a lamentable reflection on our common schools when graduates who obtain positions as typewriters, clerks, and the like, and their employers are grieved and provoked to find that some of these graduates in their employ are very defective in spelling the words of their own language.

Education Worth More Than Money

Lack of money may often be supplied but the want of an educated mind and heart cannot be. Money may be stolen, the value of property may be largely diminished, and people are often deprived of their money by unwise investments or by fraud; education can never be lost. The money we owe often enslaves us. The money we have may corrupt us and make us selfish and cold-hearted; true education always ennobles and elevates.

Our text tells us "wisdom, or education, is the principal thing." "For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to her." "My fruit is better than gold, yea, than much fine gold, and my revenue than choice silver."

Abraham Lincoln once said to a Senator in Washington that he had no great admiration for mere financial success. "For financial success," said he, "is purely metallic. The man who attains it is likely to have four metallic attributes—gold in his palm, silver on his tongue, brass in his face, and iron in his heart." These are very wise, sententious words. He whose main hope is that he shall die rich has begun to dig the grave of his noble faculties. What we strive for most is the test of our civilization. If material ends are our ideals we are not better than barbarians; we are not civilized, and christianized.

When we, or any nation of people, are not able to believe in the value, the divinity, the vital importance and eternal duration of truth, righteousness, goodness, faith, hope, and love, our true life withers like a tree whose roots have been severed. For a nation's true greatness consists not so much in its wealth and material resources and numbers, as in the contribution it makes to the highest good of mankind and the development of the noblest character.

It has been well and truly said: "We live within the mind and heart alone,

And whatsoever is not there, for us Need not exist: and therefore we may find,

Or make a home in every place and clime, And be ourselves the same, though all else change;

For we are what we know and love, and not

The things that strike upon the outer sense.

So even we may live beneath the eye Of God, and dwell in His eternity, While hurrying time with all its roaring sound

Sinks into nothingness. But truth and love

Remain always, and we also with them."

A final word to you who have finished the prescribed course of the High School: It is very properly said, the completion of a curriculum in colleges, seminaries, and other schools, is commencement. It is indeed commencement, or the beginning of the active duties of life, or of other study. I need hardly tell you to have but begun to study.

Another year's purpose is to enter upon a higher course of study in other

CORRESPONDENTS

A Few Hints Which Will Prove Valuable.

Following are a few hints which, if attention is paid to them, will be a great help and time and labor-saver to us and will no doubt prove valuable to our correspondents:

Write the name of the town in the middle at the top of the first page.

Don't abbreviate days, months, etc. Don't write on both sides of the sheet.

Don't crowd the lines too close together, we often have to make corrections.

Don't fail to leave an inch of space at the top of the sheet.

Don't forget to number each page. Don't report visits among neighbors, give us real news.

Don't capitalize everything, remember the rules of grammar.

"Boil" the items down, but state facts.

Give the places of residence of the visitors in your community; also the towns where your neighbors are visiting—many forget these essentials.

When you are out of stationery, advise us.

Should an accident or death of a prominent person occur late in the week get it to us by phone, if possible.

We go to press late Thursday afternoon. Communications received on the late trains cannot be published that week.

RECIPES

Black Chocolate Cake
Two cups flour, one and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sour milk, two eggs, one teaspoon of soda, one teaspoon vanilla. Add at least two dessert spoons of cocoa. Stir cocoa to a paste in one-half cup of boiling water. Add this to the mixture and bake, and when cold frost with cocoa mocha frosting. This is fine.

For Pie Crust
To make better pie crust and pastry, flaky and delicious, than you ever made on the old-fashioned coal range, you should, if you have a gas range, heat your oven for a full ten minutes before beginning to bake. Your heat is direct and certain and a hot oven will not only bake your pastry quickly, but will make it crisp and light and absolutely prevent soggy or toughness.

Cocoonut Butter Drops
One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, thoroughly blended. Add two eggs, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon vanilla, two level teaspoons baking powder sifted with two cups flour, and last, one cup shredded cocoonut. To have a very palatable change you could add cinnamon and ginger. Drop a spoonful on buttered tin, and bake in a good hot oven. These are certainly good.

MANY A DAY IS SPOILED
By a cough which cannot be broken by ordinary remedies. But why not try a medicine that will cure any cough that any medicine can cure? That is Kemp's Balsam. It is recommended by doctors and nurses, and it costs only 25 cents at any druggist's or dealer's. Keep a bottle always in the house and you will always be prepared to treat a cold or cough before it causes any suffering at all.

Feathers and Eggshells
When your birds are sick and you find lice on them, don't jump to the conclusion that lice did it all. Lice do not suck blood. They simply eat feathers and skin scruff and crawl. A good dust bath is their finish.

A fancier who exhibits borrowed birds is a trickster. Lending birds to a fancier to increase his entry to win a cup this year on condition that he lend you his birds to win next year is simply a conspiracy to defraud. The rule is, "Every exhibitor must own his birds." Better, every exhibitor must breed and own his birds.

If you plaster your poultry house be sure to supply your chickens with oyster shell; otherwise they eat the plaster off the wall. Lophorns are experts at it.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is the most eminent of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of the most eminent in the schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. Favorite Prescription is of known composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. 21, one cent stamps for paper-covered, or 21 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held absolutely confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

ALASKA EXPOSITION

Pennsylvania Day Will Be Appropriately Celebrated on August 16.

In the State of Washington are more than 6,000 former residents of Pennsylvania who are going to pull together to make Pennsylvania Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle this summer an event at the fair long to be remembered. It is true that Pennsylvania is some distance from Seattle, but the members of the Pennsylvania Society, an organization with 1,200 members, hope to make a fine showing on August 16, and arrangements are now being made to bring some man, prominent in the home state, to Seattle to deliver the address on Pennsylvania Day, August 16.

While Pennsylvania will not be represented at the exposition by a building and exhibits, the Pennsylvania Society will maintain headquarters at the exposition where Pennsylvanians visiting the fair will find a register containing the names of all former residents of that state now residing in Washington. This register will also show the county in which they lived in their native state.

With every prospect that the Liberty Bell will be sent to the Pacific coast for the Portland Rose Festival in June, and the exposition, the members of the Pennsylvania Society hope to have this historic relic take some part in the exercises on Pennsylvania Day at the fair.

So near complete is the exposition at this time that the buildings and grounds will be ready before the opening date, June 1, 1909.

Welds a Copper Chain

George J. Henry, a blacksmith at Bellwood, believes he has solved the mystery of welding copper, known to the early Egyptians. He gave a demonstration to a number of friends in his shop, and welded a copper link in a chain. The weld was as close as with iron or steel. The link was given several tests to prove its strength, which it stood very well.

He has been experimenting with copper for 35 years, and has perfected a process which he believes will stand every test. Of course, he zealously guards it.

SPLENDID PICTURE OFFER TO READERS

North American's Color Gravures Are Works of High Quality.

Quite the handsomest articles for home decoration that have yet been offered by a newspaper as inducements to its readers are the series of color art gravures now being distributed by The North American in exchange for a coupon from the Sunday paper and five cents.

Counting the cost of the newspaper, the entire price of these color types is 10 cents. Similar reproductions are sold every day in the art stores at $1 or more. The reduced price is due to the fact that The North American in disposing of these works of art is associated with several other large newspapers in the printing of them, and the enormous cost is greatly reduced.

The subject for the first painting issued was "The Forest Fire," a thrilling picture, and most realistic. The next subject will be a reproduction of a handsome landscape at sunset, reproduced with the utmost fidelity to nature's colorings.

Agents for The North American will furnish one of these pictures in exchange for a coupon from Sunday issues and five cents in cash.

If this line of work appeals to you, no time is better than the present to start in it. First study well the thing you make best and can supply a large demand for. Then study localities. If you are a home body, perhaps you can start a booth in your own town. If you have the wandering spirit, branch out and go as far as you dare. You will enjoy the change of scene, the new faces and new experiences. Write to the big hotels or the management of summer resorts and find out what commission or rent they will charge. Do not expect they will allow you valuable space free of charge. They are furnishing you patrons and advertisement, and will expect you to pay therefor. A Wish

Just to lie there in the sun, all the day,
Where the sea-gulls go and come, at their play,
Just to watch the islands fair,
Wave-tossed islands hung in air,
Mid the flashing breakers there
On the bay.

Just to hear the drowsy murmur of the breeze,
On to watch the sunlight flicker thro' the trees,
Just to look as in a dream
Where the white-winged vessels gleam,
Till like fairy ships them seem!
On the seas.

That is all the boon I ask, just to lie
Where the little foam-built clouds go drifting by,
Just to watch them fade from view,
For a lazy hour or two,
Where the ocean meets the blue
Of the sky.

ARE YOU A MASON?

Written by Rev. Mr. Magill, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Peru, Ill., upon being asked by a lady whether he was a Mason.

I am one of a band
Who will faithfully stand
In the bonds of affection and love.
I have knocked at the door,
Once wretched and poor,
And there for admission stood.

By the help of a hand,
Who assistance did lend,
I succeeded an entrance to gain;
Was received in the West,
By command from the East,
But not without feeling some pain.

Here my conscience was taught,
With a moral quite fraught
With sentiments holy and true;
Then onward I traveled
To have it unraveled
What Hiram intended to do.

Very soon to the East
I made known my request,
And lighted by command did attend;
When lo! I prevailed,
In due form revealed,
A Master, and Brother, and Friend.

Thus far have I started,
And simply related
What happened when I was made
Free;

But I've passed since then,
And raised up again
To the Sublime and Ancient Degree.

Then onward I marched,
That I might be Arched
And find out those treasures long lost;

When behold a bright flame,
From the midst of which came
A voice which my ears did accost.
Thro' the Vails I then went,
And succeeded at length,
The Sanctum Sanctorum to find;

By the Signet gained,
And quickly obtained,
Employment which suited my mind.
In the depths I then wrought,
And most carefully sought,
For treasures so long hidden there,
And by labor and toil
I discovered rich spoil,
Which are kept by the craft with due care.

Having thus far arrived,
I further contrived
Among gallant Knights to appear;
And, as Pilgrim and Knight,
I stood ready to fight,
Nor Saracen foe did I fear.

For the widows distressed,
There's a chord in my breast;
For the helpless and orphan I feel;
And my sword I could draw
To maintain the pure law
Which the duty of Masons reveal.

Thus have I revealed,
Yet wisely concealed,
What the Free and Accepted well know.
I am one of a band
Who will faithfully stand
As a Brother wherever I go.

For Newspaper Dead Beats

The editor sat in his office whence all but him had fled, and he wished that every deadbeat was in his grave—stone dead. His mind then wandered far away to the time when he should die and his royal editorial soul go scooting to the sky; when he'd roam the fields of Paradise and sail o'er Jasper's seas, and all things glorious would combine his every sense to please. He thought how then he'd look across the great gulf dark and drear that'll yawn between his happy soul and those who swindle here, and when for water they would call and in agony they'd caper, he'd shout to them: "Just quench your thirst with the due that's on your paper." Exchange.

Sick headache, constipation and biliousness are relieved by Rings Little Liver Pills. They cleanse the system. Do not gripe. Price 25c. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

The Bohemian Magazine for May

When the San Francisco earthquake and fire destroyed that part of the city in which the Chinese population were housed, there was lost one of the most interesting quarters in the vicinity of the Golden Gate. In this number of The Bohemian Mr. Jerome A. Heart has an article on "The New Chinatown in San Francisco," in which he tells of the Mongolians' enterprise in rebuilding their houses and, incidentally, their fortunes. College men and others interested in university life will find much to amuse them in "Familiar Yarns of the Yale Faculty," the best of the series of college articles that has yet appeared. Those who contemplate a trip abroad should read the quite bohemian study of Parisian life "In a French Cafe," and the railroad article called "The Iron Horse Abroad." In "A Mere Matter of Detail," attention is called to the thousand and one minor articles which are considered necessary nowadays in the staging of plays. The stories are up to their usual high standard, making this number a magazine of extraordinary interest.

Home-Made Potato Yeast

Peel and boil six potatoes in two quarts of water until they break. Remove the potatoes with a skimmer and mash them fine, mixing with them four tablespoonsful of flour and two of granulated sugar, wetting the mass with the hot water in which the potatoes were boiled. When all the water has been used, beat the mass until it is luke-warm, then add a half-cup of lively yeast and set aside in a large bowl to ferment. When fermentation ceases, bottle the mixture and keep in the ice chest. When using this, pour out what is needed and replace the bottle in the icebox at once, as standing in a warm place will spoil it.

A TARDY RETURN

From the time it takes Prosperity to return she must have gone a great distance from us. We were told that the election of Mr. Taft would be sufficient to bring about normal business conditions; then we were told to patiently await his inauguration and all doubt would be dissipated by rapid industrial strides, but alas, it, too, failed—and the end is not yet. The extra session of Congress, called to revise the tariff, is at work—breaking the campaign pledge of the party in power while mills remain closed and unemployed workmen walk the streets hungry or, unmindful of the "canon of the Everlasting" against self-slaughter, end their deplorable condition by their own hands.

In this county, though but a small section of it is devoted to mining, there are now more than 2,000 who would gladly dig into the earth for coal lying idle, and half as many more if iron workers, to say nothing of those engaged in other pursuits under normal conditions.

A TARIFF WEATHER VANE

The first amendment to the Aldrich tariff bill adopted in the Senate is a return to the McKinley rate. It was to raise the duty from 2 1/2 to 3 cents per pound, as provided in the House measure, an increase of about 20 per cent., on orange mineral.

This is, of course, in the interest of the lead trust alone but it shows all too clearly the drift of the Senate under trust influences and gives us warning of what may be expected to happen to other schedules as they in turn come up for consideration. The people of the country are now beginning to see what it means to have a tariff "revised by its friends."

This sort of revision is a deliberate breaking of the Republican pledge to the nation, and many Republican papers of national standing whose shrouds are not held by trust engineers are traveling on rails of honor and condemning our national bodies of law makers for the "party perfidy" that is being revealed. Even the Philadelphia Press, rock-ribbed in Republicanism, said editorially yesterday:

Changes made should be chiefly downwards, and a broad change is wise if conservative in character and sufficient protection is retained to meet the differences between labor here and abroad and furnish American manufacturers a fair profit.

When the Senate tariff wiped out the reduction in the duty on carpet wools in the Payne tariff the restoration of the old and heavy duty on this raw material worked directly against the carpet industry of Philadelphia. This duty needs lower duties on wool, from iron ore, tree hides and free lumber. Philadelphia is Protection to the core, but it is for the protection that widens markets and increases the demand for labor and not for an advance in duties, which narrows both.

The tide will turn, the people will not always stand for the breaking of pledges made in platforms. They will not stand as representatives in state and nation men who not only do not make personal pledges, but men who will not keep "political promises," men who will not present and urge the passage of bills because "they want it" whether the "they" is the local annex of a state machine or a skeptical trust, capable of "leadening" instincts which might otherwise be capable of golden conduct.

Not to every man are there erected monuments by his fellowman, but every man erects monuments that are enduring beyond the ravages of time, just in proportion as he lives a life that is fraught with deeds that make for truth and right. In common life there are men who withstand the pangs and slurs of criticizing tongues while they make their stand for justice. These men may pass away and be forgotten, yet the principles which they instilled by their lives remain as lasting monuments in the hearts and works of generations which follow.

We need not be missed if our lives have been wanting
As their summer and autumn moved silently on;
The bloom, and the fruit and the seed of its season,
We shall still be remembered by what we have done.

Not ourselves, but the truths that in life we have spoken,
Not ourselves, but the seeds that in life we have sown,
Shall pass on to ages all about us forgotten.
Save the truths we have spoken, the things we have done.

So let our living be, so let our dying,
So let our names be unblazoned, unknown.
Unpraised and unmissed, we shall still be remembered,
Yes, but remembered by what we have done.

Needs there the praise of the love written records,
The names and the epitaphs graven on the stone;
The things we have lived for—let them be our story,
We, ourselves, but remembered by what we have done.

A Portion of History

Charles Wesley Stern is a son of Mrs. Sarah V. Stern of East John Street, Bedford. He reviewed the history of the public schools of this place from the erection of the present building.

As this building was erected in 1859 it, therefore, seems appropriate that we should celebrate its bi-centennial this evening by giving a brief sketch of the progress of education in and around Bedford. Education in Bedford made very little progress before 1834, when a law was passed by the state for the establishment of a Free School System, and as many of the people in our county severely denounced the law several years elapsed before its provisions were carried into effect.

The first school established in Bedford was the Bedford Academy, which was incorporated March 20, 1810, by an Act of the Legislature. The management of this school was vested in eight trustees and an appropriation of $2,000 was received from the state, one-half to be used in erecting a building and buying supplies, the other half to be a permanent fund; the income of which should be used in the education of the poor children. Rev. James Wilson was the first principal and as he was an excellent scholar the school became widely celebrated and attracted pupils from the neighboring counties and Maryland.

Our present system of public schools was adopted between 1835 and 1840. Then, in accordance with an Act of Assembly, a school board was elected and free schools were established in our town. The history of the growth of free education in Bedford is very interesting. At first, three districts were established, buildings were leased and equipped by the school board and in some cases by the teachers. Teachers were employed at a salary of $25 a month and were allowed an additional $5 per month if they furnished a room in which to teach.

It was not till 25 years after the Free School System was adopted that the school board saw its way clear to build a school house of its own. During these years, from 1834 to 1859, the children of the eastern district attended school in the old court house, those of the middle district in some room provided by the teacher, and those of the western district in a little brick school house on West Pitt Street. These were years of hard struggle, for the school teachers were paid small salaries and in many instances were poorly equipped. Many parents were too poor to furnish their children with books and the course of study was very unsystematic.

In 1859 the school board secured the present site and erected a four-room building upon it, known as the Union School Building. This centralized the schools of the town and made it possible to organize them. From this time on they made steady progress and to meet the growing demand the school board enlarged the building by adding the north and south wings and this spacious assembly hall.

This building stands as an evidence of the growth of the Free School System in our town. There is no edifice in this town that is referred to with as much pride by our citizens as this building. It meant much to students in former years to come here and learn and it has meant much to us who are now celebrating our commencement to have studied within its walls.

As the building has been enlarged, so the course of study has been extended. In the beginning the course of study implied only what is known as the common school branches, but today the student who finishes the course herein laid down goes out with a modest high school training. We are very grateful to those who have provided these means for our education and let us hope when another fifty years has elapsed the high school in Bedford will rank among the first in the state.

Mantle Oration

The member of the class chosen for this duty was Harry William Koontz, son of George Koontz of Bedford Township.

Classmates: One year ago we received a mantle which signified that the honorable title and responsible labors of seniors were cast upon us. The time has come, tonight, when we must place this mantle on the shoulders of our successors. Hopes arise in us that they may honor it, yet we cannot but think how we honored it.

As a senior class, we have completed our course in triumph; we have been faithful and diligent students throughout the whole course. A high school course may lay the foundation of a successful life but does not, by any means, perfect it. Only life in the world can do that.

You recall the old fable of the king who built his grandest palace and was to occupy it on the morrow; but when the morrow came, the palace was a pile of ruins. "Woe is me," cried the king. "Who is guilty of this crime?" "There is no crime," replied the sage at his side, "For the mortar was made of sand and water only and the builders forgot to put in the lime." Thus if we, in our senior year, have forgotten or neglected to add the vital elements of education, our future rests uncertain. It is true we can remedy certain omissions, but we shall never be as strong as if we had laid a solid foundation. But, having done our best, we relinquish this mantle and welcome it to the shoulders of our successors.

Members of the class of 1910: The class of 1909 has given you an example of how a senior class can conduct itself. We do not loudly profess that we have set for you a perfect example, nor is it obligatory upon your part, as a class, to do anything as did this class; but what good we have done we hope you may emulate or, at least, equal it. And if we have been negligent or made mistakes in anything, we ask you to overlook that and be very careful not to get into those paths yourselves. But, above all, strive to conduct yourselves as seniors should and keep this mantle as spotless as you have received it.

This was responded to by Harold Weisel, in behalf of the class of 1910.

Valedictory

John Kay Manock, who won first honors of the class of 1909, spoke on "The Value of Opportunities" and concluded with a few words of farewell. He is the only son of James Manock of near Bedford and is between the ages of 15 and 16 years.

Shakespeare said:
"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads to fortune."

We may meet these tides accidentally, or we may bring them about through hard labor. As an illustration—it is generally understood that good petroleum oil was practically unknown before the year 1874, owing to the fact that it was refined by a very crude process. Thousands, at the time, may have noticed this but one man, John D. Rockefeller, not only noticed it but used it advantageously and improved the method of refining it. Thus, by taking advantage of his opportunity, he helped practically every American family and also benefited himself, for in twenty years this small refinery grew into the great Standard Oil Trust, increasing in value from one thousand to ninety million dollars.

On account of the fact that such opportunities as these are grasped by a few only, many people think that opportunities come to but the chosen ones. The ancients had greater faith in this belief than the people today, for we learn from ancient history that men consulted oracles to find out whether their projects would be aided by fortune and, when a man suffered from many misfortunes, he attributed it to the fact that he was born under an unlucky star. They also believed that success belonged only to the higher classes of society and should a rare character spring from a low caste, it was thought that he was especially favored by the gods.

But, as stated before, this belief is not as general as it formerly was for the world is beginning to realize that opportunities lie in the path of every man, and whatever walk of life he may choose he will find opportunities on every side. If he chooses to be a philosopher, he has ample opportunity to come in touch with the best thought of the ages and to work out and prove principles that will be of value to his fellowmen. If he chooses to be a professional man, he will find there is greater demand for his services than ever before.

In the legal profession there are opportunities for him to serve more clients for greater compensation because the complex condition of society today demands the services of the best skilled lawyers. In the medical profession there is also large field for labor, for the world is in need of men who are able not only to cure disease but to convince communities of the importance of prevention of it. And who are more competent of devising ways and means by which the sanitary conditions of our homes and large cities may be so perfected that disease may be practically obliterated?

There are also opportunities offered in the industrial world for either the electrical or mining engineer because large syndicates and corporations are eager to obtain the services of competent men of these professions. Nor should we neglect the opportunities offered in the business world, because as the population of our land has increased there has been an increase both in the demand and supply of products. In order that there may be systematic business relations in the world, we need the business man who is capable of managing and promoting industries that will develop every resource in the land.

With all these fields for labor, the question for every young man or woman is "What are my opportunities?" In the first place, if he has health and fair ability, there is open to him at the beginning of life the training he may receive by taking advantage of a free school course, which will enable him to battle with life successfully. He then has the freedom to enter into any profession for which he can prepare himself.

This is verified by the fact that thousands of young men and women have worked their way through college and gained eminence in their professions.

There is also equal opportunity for a young man to start low in business and by dint of hard labor, coupled with sound judgment, to raise himself to an important position in the business world. So it is possible for us to have opportunities and to use them to the best of our ability, that we in turn may gain from our fellowmen.

Classmates, let us take advantage of all our opportunities as well as we have taken advantage of the opportunity given us by this community. Let us ever be grateful to the authorities who have aided us in our work, and let us ever remember with gratitude and praise the teachers whose instruction shall always linger in our minds.

Our parting is at hand, each to choose his course in life, but may the ties of friendship formed never be broken and may we always remember our school days as the halcyon days of our lives. The time has come when we must say adieu, as Milton says:

"Tomorrow to fresh woods, and pastures new."

After the presentation of the diplomas by Principal Tanger with well chosen remarks, a farewell song closed the exercises.

Penn Mutual Representative Here

Denn Stiles, the Somerset and Bedford County representative of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, has been in town for a few days. Mr. Stiles came on to settle a claim of Jacob Bowser, who died recently. This company has many large policies in this county, and it is rumored that they will devote more time to this location in the future.

Situation in Lewistown

It is being reported throughout this and adjoining counties that Lewistown is unable to take care of the travelers since they have been refused licenses.

In talking this subject over with a prominent salesman, who has been on the road for 15 years, he reports the above facts as untrue and that he has received even better accommodations since no license than he did before. He also notes an absence of the bar room loafers and he notes a great improvement in every respect throughout the town.

LETTER TO JAMES CORBOY
Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir: New Orleans is one of the cities hard on paint; but, nevertheless, they paint lead-and-oil a good deal there.

A C Callier painted two houses last year for F Hindrer: one lead-and-oil and the other Devoe. The first is already in bad condition; Devoe is perfect.

M Augustin, New Orleans, has painted his house Devoe three times in eighteen years. This shows that Devoe is good for six years there.

In Florida, where lead-and-oil wears only a year, we have no complaint of Devoe and we know of its wearing ten years in several instances. We don't say it wears ten years, you know; there are such instances.

"No complaint" is enough to say till we have long-time experiences; they're coming. Meantime, Devoe is the paint that takes least gallons, makes least bill, and wears longest. So much we're sure of.

Yours truly,

After Knox's Scalp

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Word comes from Columbia, O., that attorneys there have forwarded papers to Washington to start proceedings in the U. S. Supreme Court to oust Secretary of State Knox. Proceedings will be brought on the ground that under the constitution Knox was ineligible at the time of his appointment because he was a Senator when the salary of the Secretary of State was raised. The administration has long expected such a move. The names of those behind the plan are withheld.

New System of Highway Maintenance.
Patrick E. Leahy, commissioner of highways, borough of Queens, has organized a new system of inspection and repair of highways, says a Long Island City (N. Y.) dispatch. The borough has been divided into a number of districts as follows: Long Island City, S; Newtown, 16; Flushing, 12; Jamaica, 12; Rockaway, 3. Each of these districts is to be in charge of an assistant foreman, who will be held strictly responsible for the condition of his district. The names of each assistant foreman and his men will be furnished to the property owners and residents of the district, and the latter will be encouraged to co-operate with the new commissioner. Reports will be received from the foremen every night as to the work that has been done during the day and the work each man began work and when he stopped. The department has $100,000 to spend on maintenance of the 80 miles of highways, which have cost from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 and in bad shape.

Liquid Asphalt Makes Good Road.
The road committee of the board of chosen freeholders of Mercer county, N. J., has inspected the Hopewell and Stoutsburg road, which was recently macadamized and treated with liquid asphalt. The road was found to be in good condition and at present can scarcely be distinguished from an asphalt pavement. The liquid asphalt was incorporated in the road during its construction, being sprayed upon the binder, and the finer stone, or top dressing, being rolled into the mixture afterward. The extra cost was 8 cents a square yard. The stretch of highway treated measures two miles.

A BRAVE
SINNER.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Raymond Nolan was eighteen when he entered the service of a small bank. He was a bright fellow, not only ready to do his own work, but that of any one else. He had been taught the value of money and that the surest way to start a fortune was by saving. Consequently each week when he drew his salary he put aside a certain amount for this purpose.

Raymond was a great favorite with Mr. Porter, owner of the bank. Seeing that the youngster was in every way fitted for promotion, he promoted him as rapidly as vacancies occurred. At each raise of salary Raymond increased the proportionate amount that he put aside for his "nest egg." When that nest egg reached $500 he looked about for some method of investment. He bought a bond paying 4 per cent interest. From this time his capital increased a little more rapidly. His attention being called to certain shares that were paying double the interest he received on his bond, he changed his investment. The shares not only paid him the interest, but rose in value. He sold them and had $1,000 of his own.

As year after year passed Nolan found himself nearer to the amount he had fixed upon for legitimate investment. Sometimes he would sink away from it under a depression of securities, but usually upon a reaction he would find himself further ahead than before. At one of these depressions he concluded to increase his investment, accepting a loan from his broker for the purpose—in other words, buy on a margin. Stocks were considered very cheap and bound to have a good rise. As Nolan had his affairs arranged a rise of five points would give him his $10,000.

But, contrary to expectations, stocks continued to depreciate, sinking instead of rising five points. Then they rested awhile, and another period of liquidation carried them down ten points further. On down they went till Nolan found that he had lost his capital. His brokers called on him for "margin" and told him that if he did not hand it in at once they would sell him out. Stocks were very low, and when the market turned they would likely boom.

This was a turning point in Nolan's career. He borrowed $1,000 from the bank without reporting the loan. Stocks went down, and he borrowed more money.

One morning ten years after Nolan had entered Mr. Porter's service he went into that gentleman's private office and said to him:
"Mr. Porter, some time ago at a sudden collapse of the stock market I lost my savings of years. I believed that there would soon be a rise that would restore all I had lost and give me much more. I borrowed money from the bank to use for margin. Stocks have been still going down, and I have lost $25,000 of your money."

The president told him that the shortage had been discovered; that the bank had made other losses which they might have weathered without this one. As it was, a failure was unavoidable.

"Mr. Porter," said the young man, "call a policeman and turn me in for conviction. There will be no trial. I shall plead guilty."

"No," replied the president. "I shall not prosecute you."

"Then I will surrender myself."
The president endeavored to persuade the young man to go out into the world unsmirched and begin again. But, no. He had sinned beyond his own forgiveness, and his life had lost its charm. Thereafter he would live under the blight in any form fate assigned him. He left the president, gave himself up to the police under his own confession and within a week was in state prison beginning a term of ten years.

Nolan, receiving the shortened time for good behavior, was discharged in about seven years. The banker had failed and had died, leaving a child, a boy, without mother or support of any kind. As soon as the prisoner regained his liberty he sought out this child, whom he found selling papers. Nolan went to a merchant whom he had known before his embezzlement and asked for a position. The only job the merchant would give him was that of porter. He accepted it, took the boy to live with him, sent him to school and otherwise provided for his maintenance.

One habit acquired by Nolan has remained a fixture. He saves money—saves it not for himself, for he is living a life without either a present or a future. He is saving it for the boy whose father he wronged. He has given that boy a child's savings bank, and the boy, too, is saving. And there is a lesson in finance the young capitalist receives at intervals impressively. Is it not to speculate? No. It is the one great lesson that every boy should learn—never use a cent of a trust fund.

Nolan is no longer a porter. He is in a business of his own. He manages it himself, but through others. He takes the risks usual to any man who handles money, but he pays cash and will not permit other people's money to remain in his possession overnight—not that he fears temptation, but the sensation would be disagreeable to him. He is ready to turn over to his self-imposed ward all he took from that ward's father as soon as the boy is equipped to receive it.

In one respect he has not been courageous. He has never told the boy of his sin.

May 5—The Kearney coke works of Joseph E. Thropp have closed down for an indefinite period.

Joseph Williams, formerly of this place but recently employed in Virginia, is visiting at his home.

Quite a number from here attended the funeral of A. Y. Mears. A special train was run from Kearney to Broad Top City and returned to Kearney again, bringing the friends back home.

In the death of A. Y. Mears this community has lost one of her best citizens. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand to all in sorrow or distress. He has been manager for Joseph E. Thropp's store at Kearney for a number of years. He was possessed of an excellent memory and stood for all that was best for his fellow man. He was interested in the temperance movement that steadily but surely sweeps over our county and expressed himself to the writers that the liquor evil was the worst thing we had to contend with in this community, and he was in a position to know. He will be missed in this section of the county, for as someone has said, "He was a man worth while."

Warm Weather Gowns of Crinkled Crape—Modish Shirt Waist Sleeve.
Very serviceable warm weather gowns are made entirely of crinkled cotton crape. These are especially convenient dresses owing to the fact that they require no ironing. The cheaper domestic crape is used for the frocks, while the imported French material is best for blouses.
One of the best new sleeves to put into severe shirt waists is plain leg o' mutton, with very little fullness at the top and with none below. Although there is a plain shirt waist cuff, the sleeve is put into it without gathers, which is snappy and corresponds with the long simple lines of the accepted models in shirt waists and gowns.

Kimonoes of this character are particularly attractive for the reason that they may be quickly and easily made. The neck and sleeves may be finished with edging or ruffles of the material. The yoke effect is particularly becoming, and the V neck finishing is comfortable and cool for summer. The regulation kimono sleeves had a most unfortunate habit of catching in everything with which they came in contact. In the model illustrated this difficulty is overcome, for the sleeves, although not tight, are modishly small and gathered into a band.

waists, but the fluffy afternoon summer dresses will have short sleeves.
Doz collars in high class designs borrowed from old pieces are to be had in a variety of styles. Many of them are in round, square or oval flat links finely cut.
Washable button molds in all sizes are made of bone. They cost from 5 cents to 15 cents a dozen. Metal molds are apt to discolor the cover when they are washed, and the wooden ones are seldom satisfactory after this experience.
The frock pictured is adapted wonderfully well for the new bordered materials. The bodice is arranged to show the design to advantage.

FARM DRIVEWAYS.

Michigan Farmer Tells How to Make Them With Gravel and Cinders.

While we are busily talking about good roads we must not forget the most needful one is that which runs from the gate to the barns and over which we travel many miles during the year. At the time I moved to Mapleside farm a few years ago the mud was hub deep for the horses and no better for the men on the footpaths, says D. C. Dean, a Michigan farmer. We moved to Mapleside farm in April, and the women folks did not get to the barns until after the middle of May. As soon as the crops were in those roads received my undivided attention until they were in a serviceable condition.

I did not draw in more dirt to soak up, but began at the bottom by plowing out and removing over a foot of the soil. I then opened a gravel bank and drew in enough to fill that taken out. Next I made arrangements for some cinders and put them over the gravel about a foot thick. This answered very well that season, but in the fall before the mud began to deepen I covered the road again, and during the winter all the coal ashes were spread wherever there seemed to be a low spot. By following this scheme for four years I succeeded in making a road that never has any mud. If I find a low spot where water stands after a rain it is taken care of at once.

On the south side of the house three years ago I built a road that has not required any repairing as yet beyond drawing three loads of gravel last spring. For this road I pursued a little different method. It was old sod, so I plowed through it and turned the sod upside down three deep on either side of the road, then drew out all the dirt beneath that was loose and easy to handle.

This left me a trench about eighteen inches or two feet to fill, which I did from my gravel bank, and no cinders were put on this road, as I could not get them. This roadway is about nine inches above the lawn on either side and never gets muddy. About the house are cement platforms and walks, while the roadway on either side is so hard it can be swept at any time. I find it pays when you are at it to make a good road and takes no longer. I find a gravel bank about the best bank I can patronize when it comes to roadmaking.

ROLLING GOOD FOR ROADS.

Auto Found Serviceable in Making Street Passable After Snows.

The man who brings together the best productions in different lines and obtains results which better his own production may not be an inventor in the true sense of the word, but he certainly possesses good common sense.

In Vermont and other New England states a road roller is used in the winter to pack down the snow and make the roads passable. By doing this after each snowstorm a really fine winter road results. The method used in upper New York is to draw two large iron kettles, such as are used for the making of soft soap, behind a team of horses or oxen. This is not very perfect, as it leaves a core in the road and simply pushes the snow to the side of the road instead of packing it down.

After a recent snowstorm in Reading, Pa., in which the roads were left in bad condition, H. L. Hardy, the designer at a factory, conceived the idea of rolling the roads. He attached an ordinary land roller to the front of a sextuplet and started from the factory to the home of Mr. Sternbergh. Naturally he did not try to break any speed records, but the trip, about six miles, was made in one hour.

One of the road commissioners of Berks county accompanied him and was much surprised to see what an improvement this roller process was over the kettle drag. Mr. Hardy says he will not patent or copyright this idea, so any one who desires to roll snow roads by automobile is free to try it.

Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 9, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xiii, 13-52. Memory Verses, 38, 39—Golden Text, Acts xiii, 49—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]
Crossing from Cyprus to the mainland, they landed at Perga, where they do not seem to have preached the gospel at this time, but they did on their return journey (xiv, 25). For some reason John Mark left them here and returned to Jerusalem, and Paul felt it so much that when they were about to start on their second tour it caused a separation between Paul and Barnabas. But the time came when Paul wrote to Timothy, "Take Mark and bring him with thee, for he is profitable to me for the ministry" (xv, 37-40; II Tim., iv, 11). Time alters the appearance of many things, and if we were more slow to condemn and more full of the love that beareth all things, thinketh no evil and is not provoked, how much better it would be! Paul and Barnabas are found next at Antioch, in Pisidia, and, as was evidently their custom, they went to the synagogue on the Sabbath day and sat quietly among the people during the reading of the law and the prophets, but no doubt very prayerfully. Being then invited to speak, Paul gladly gave the address.
In five sentences (verses 17-21) Paul summarizes the books of Exodus, Numbers, Joshua, Judges and Samuel, reaching to David, the second king over all Israel, of whom God said, "I have found David a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfill all my will" (verse 22). Then he passed right on to Jesus, the son of David, as Israel's Saviour, according to II Sam. vii, 12, 13; I Chron. xvii, 11-14; Ps. cxxii, 11; Isa. ix, 6, 7; Jer. xxiii, 5, 6; Luke i, 32, 33. With a word concerning John the Baptist as the herald of Christ (Isa. xl, 3; Mal. iii, 1), he declared that Jesus risen from the dead was a fulfillment of Ps. ii, 7; Isa. lv, 3; Ps. xvi, 10, and that through Him were now proclaimed to all then and there assembled the forgiveness of sins and a justification from all things which the law of Moses could never give (verses 38, 39). With another quotation from Isa. xxix, 13, 14, and Hab. i, 5, he urges them to beware of despising such glad tidings.
How wondrous is this grace which is so fully stated in II Cor. viii, 9, as to the reason and manifestation of it and so simply in Rom. xiii, 24; v, 1, as to the benefits we receive, "Being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Or, again, in a passage which I love specially to ponder, "To the praise of the glory of His grace, wherein He hath made us accepted in the Beloved, in whom we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace" (Eph. i, 6, 7). The gospel which puts any doubts of ours between us and the redemption which is in Christ Jesus is not the gospel of the grace of God. On the next Sabbath day at Antioch nearly the whole city came to hear the word of God. The Jews were filled with envy when they saw the multitudes and began to contradict and blaspheme and speak against the things which Paul taught, whereupon the Lord's messengers said boldly that since they (the Jews) had judged themselves unworthy of everlasting life they would turn to the gentiles, according to the prophecy in Isa. xlix, 6, a word which primarily refers to the Messiah, but which all true representatives of the Lord can appreciate as His witnesses. The gentiles rejoiced to hear the message. The word of the Lord was published throughout all that region, and many believed and were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost notwithstanding the persecution by the Jews (including some devout and honorable women and the chief men of the city), which expelled Paul and Barnabas from the city.
Let no one stumble over the saying "as many as were ordained to eternal life" (verse 48). There are to my mind two great truths which we must ever hold fast as foundation truths—"God is love," "The Lord is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (I John iv, 8-16; II Pet. iii, 9). With the first put such tests as John iii, 16; Rom. v, 8, and with the last such as I Tim. ii, 2, 4; Tit. ii, 11, margin. Now, being sure on these two points and considering that God has an eternal purpose which He has purposed in Christ Jesus and which He is working out to a glorious consummation, it is difficult to believe that He who declareth the end from the beginning foresaw from all eternity who would form the body of Christ, the church, at the same time making the offer honestly to all with the assurance, "If it cometh to me I will in nowise cast out?" (John vi, 37.) When the Holy Spirit sent these men on this tour He knew just what they were to meet at each place and who would believe the glad tidings and who would reject the message. Success as men count success is not everything. But to know and do and live in the will of God and glorify Him—that is everything. To us as well as to these two it is a privilege to be despised and rejected and spoken against for Jesus' sake.
